- Roads
- Transport
- Safety and well being
- Street lighting

- Housing and quality of life

3.0 Methodology

Self-completion paper questionnaires were distributed to all households in the Wetheral Parish. A total of 2,514 households received a copy.

Questionnaires were entered into the SNAP survey software package. Full analysis was carried out, including analysis by area within the Parish.

Two thirds of the sample are satisfied with their rubbish and recycling collection and just under two thirds agreed that they already recycle what they can (respondents could choose more than one statement). One in ten would recycle more if there was a community collection point in their local community and one in fourteen would recycle more if there was a collection from their home, see Table 10.

A high proportion of residents would support several community renewable energy schemes if cost effective. Three quarters would support solar power; over six out of ten would support hydro power; over half would support photovoltaic and heat pumps/geothermal power and half would support biomass. The scheme showing most resilience by the public is wind power, just a third would support such a scheme, see Table 11.

5.4 Condition of local environment

Aggressive animals and broken stiles/gates do not seem to be a major problem on local footpaths and bridleways in Wetheral and surrounding areas. Just a fifth of respondents consider aggressive animals to be an occasional or significant problem and three out of ten consider broken stiles/gates to be an occasional or significant problem, see Table 13.

Replicating earlier concerns about dog fouling, eight out of ten consider dog fouling to be an occasional or significant problem on local footpaths/bridleways; three fifths consider overgrown hedges to be an occasional or significant problem; just under half consider circular routes for linking up pathways to be an occasional or significant problem. Chart 4

Eight out of ten (83%) consider traffic around schools at drop-off and pick-up times to be a problem and speeding vehicles (80%) to be a problem. Around six out of ten (58%) think the safety of pedestrians is a problem. Seven out of ten (72%) think lack of cycle tracks on major roads are a problem. Half (50%) consider the volume of traffic and volume of commercial vehicles (49%) to be problematic in their area, see Table 27.

- Away from busy roads
- Along the A69
- Wherever possible
- Alongside roads
- Alongside footpaths.

For a full summary, please see Appendix 2, Table 77.

Theft from property is considered to be an occasional or significant problem by 56% of respondents. Four out of ten (41%) say vandalism is an occasional or significant problem. Three out of ten considers anti-social behaviour (37%) and other policing problems (31%) to be an occasional or significant problem in their area, see Table 35.

Anti-social behaviour seems to be of particular concern to Warwick Bridge residents. 73% of them say anti-social behaviour is an occasional or significant problem, see Table 36.

Drunkenness in the street is more of concern to Great Corby and Warwick Bridge residents a third of both sets of residents say this is an occasional or significant problem, see Table 37.

5.7 Local facilities and services

Around 200 respondents chose not to complete the questions on facilities for young people, perhaps because they are unfamiliar with the facilities that are currently available. Of those that did respond, eight out of ten (78%) agree that there are plenty of facilities for 0-4 year olds, a fifth (22%) disagree. Three quarters (74%) agree there are plenty of facilities for 5-11 year olds, a quarter (26%) disagree. Four out of ten agree there are plenty of facilities for 12-17 year olds, six out of ten disagree. Just under four out of ten (37%) agree there are plenty of facilities for 18-25 year olds. Around two thirds (64%) disagree.

On the whole respondents feel well served by most of the local facilities. This is with the exception of takeaways, where just over a third felt well served, however it would be wrong to assume that respondents that do not feel well served by takeaways would welcome additional takeaways in their area. They may think the balance of takeaways in the area is fine as it is.

Nine out of ten feel well served by Post offices and pubs/restaurants. Around nine out of ten feel well served by cemeteries. Eight out of ten (83%) feel well served by shops. Seven out of ten feel well served by outdoor recreation facilities (70%) and sporting facilities (68%).
